Balcony over the sea

Designed for a young family on a battle-axe block overlooking a popular Sydney beach, the main feature of this house is its generously sized balcony built to take advantage of the spectacular view. Despite external venetians and eaves, light floods the interior, and dark flooring is utilised to offset this. This prompted a chiaroscuro interior with colourful furniture to complement both the black-and-white elements of the house, as well as the ocean views. This bold monochromatic palette is particularly evident in the living space, where a black dining setting is silhouetted against soft white drapes.
